

TEXAS PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEDIA AWARDS COMPETITION

Deadline
February 1,
2010

Texas media have significantly advanced community understanding and support for public health through their interpretation of issues affecting public health programs and problems in our state. The Texas Public Health Association (TPHA) and its membership represent a multi-disciplinary approach to health which includes engineers, health educators, nurses, dietitians, social workers, statisticians, veterinarians, dentists, physicians, epidemiologists and sanitarians, to name a few. Working together, these professionals monitor, promote and maintain the health of the population and thereby improve the quality of life for all. If you have written or produced such communications about public health, you are eligible for one of two types of awards. Established in 1976, these awards are presented at our annual convention (April 21-23, 2010 in South Padre Island, Texas) and recognize outstanding media contributions.

The Awards (The Honor, The Glory, The PHAME!)

For the outstanding communication efforts, we award a plaque, a certificate of merit and a cash prize ($200). Appropriately, we call the award PHAME, the Public Health Award for Media Excellence. PHAME is presented in only two categories: the best each from the print and electronic media. After selecting the two PHAME awards, all other entries are automatically eligible for the remaining awards. Winners will be selected from each of the eight categories listed below and will receive an engraved plaque and a certificate of merit. All awards carry with them the collective gratitude of the 800 member association.
